Editor's Introduction

It is a wonderful thing to see an issue like this come together. Prof. Brendan Sweetman from Rockhurst University spearheaded a fantastic symposium involving philosopher and Wittgenstein scholar D. Z. Phillips who passed away soon after his contribution was finished. We at the EPS offer this issue as one tribute to his important life and work.

As usual, though, our symposium or collection of theme articles is just the beginning. Prof. R. Scott Smith starts off our articles section with a provocative essay on Alvin Plantinga's thought that will surely generate some responses—and those will be welcomed. But that's not all. Gary Habermas is the first one out of the box with a review of Antony Flew's new book There Is a God. The story of Prof. Flew's change of mind continues to draw attention, and it is good to have his friend Prof. Habermas guide us past the hype and Internet confusion to the truth of the matter.

This issue will likely land in your mailboxes after our annual meeting in mid-November. If it arrives sooner, take this as a last minute reminder to join us for a terrific lineup of presentations of original research—and a few surprises. If it arrives after the conference, consider this issue part of the “afterglow” of a very stimulating gathering in San Diego.

Lastly, we welcome you to visit our dramatically redeveloped Web site (www.epsociety.org)—a fresh place to sample the online presence of the Evangelical Philosophical Society and Philosophia Christi.
