EDITORS INTRODUCTION
Craig J. Hazen 327

FORUM ON ERIK J. WIELENBERG’S ROBUST ETHICS
Adam Lloyd Johnson, William Lane Craig, Tyler Dalton McNabb, Mark C. Murphy & Erik J. Wielenberg 329

ARTICLES
The Imago Dei and Blaise Pascal’s Abductive Anthropological Argument
Jonathan Threlfall 379

Does the Purpose Theory of the Meaning of Life Entail an Irrational God?
Elliott R. Crozat 401

Theistic Evolution, Intelligent Design, and the Charge of Deism
Robert Larmer 415

The Open Theistic Multiverse
Timothy Blank 429

The Argument from Disagreement to Moral Skepticism
Christopher W. Love 443

Origen on Demonic Ignorance
Travis Dumsday 461

Christian Materialism and Demonic Temptation
Matthew J. Hart 481

Intentionality contra Physicalism
Dallas Willard & Brandon Rickabaugh 497

Extending the Debate on the Argument from Reason
Victor Reppert 517

Retiring the Argument from Reason
David Kyle Johnson 541

PHILOSOPHICAL NOTES
Evil Does Not Pose Any Special Problem for Berkeleyan Idealism
Benjamin H. Arbour & Gregory E. Trickett 567

What’s Wrong with Theistic Evolution?
William Hasker 581

BOOK REVIEWS
591

NEWS AND ANNOUNCEMENTS
604
The announcements section for annual meeting details. For membership information contact

May join as associate or student members. The EPS holds a national meeting each year in ing philosophical excellence in both the church and the academy. Interested laypersons

Founded in 1974, the EPS is an organization of professional scholars devoted to pursu-are solely those of the individual authors and do not necessarily represent the position of the Evangelical Philosophical Society and/or Biola University.

Requests regarding subscriptions, memberships, and change of address should be sent to:

Craige J. Hazen, Editor
P.O. Box 1298, La Mirada, CA 90637–1298
E-mail: craig.hazen@biola.edu • Phone: 562.906.4570 • Fax: 562.777.4063

We invite English-language submissions of original research in philosophy, apologetics, philosophical theology, philosophy of religion(s), ethics, worldviews, and philosophical and theological prolegomena. Although articles from specialists and established schol-

ers are preferred, articles of superior quality from graduate students are welcome. Contributors do not need to be members of the EPS. All manuscripts submitted should not have been published elsewhere and should not be under consideration for publication elsewhere without the consent of the editor.

The preferred length of articles is between 4,000 and 9,000 words (approximately sixteen to thirty-six manuscript pages). Manuscripts must follow The Chicago Manual of Style (17th ed.) and should be printed in twelve-point font, double-spaced with generous margins. All references should be in footnotes. Please prepare any submission as a Word document ready for blind review. Where possible, please submit all submissions via our online delivery system: http://bit.ly/PCSubmission. The online submission form will prompt you to provide contact and paper information, including a one hundred word abstract of the submission. Before acceptance, submissions will be blind reviewed by appropriate referees. We reserve the right to edit for usage and style. All accepted manuscripts are subject to editorial modification. Authors of articles and philosophical notes will receive one gratis copy of the journal in which the article appears along with a reproducible electronic copy of the article or note.

These are brief discussions of a focused issue of philosophical interest to our readers and may be more personal, responsive, or reflective than regular research articles. Responses to previously published articles in Philosophia Christi are published in this section. Notes should normally not exceed 4,000 words, but the style and submission guidelines are the same as regular articles.

Submission of unsolicited book reviews is permissible, but prior communication with the book review editor is preferred. Proposals for review essays may also be sent to the book review editors.

We invite English-language submissions of original research in philosophy, apologetics, philosophical theology, philosophy of religion(s), ethics, worldviews, and philosophical and theological prolegomena. Although articles from specialists and established schol-

ers are preferred, articles of superior quality from graduate students are welcome. Contributors do not need to be members of the EPS. All manuscripts submitted should not have been published elsewhere and should not be under consideration for publication elsewhere without the consent of the editor.

The preferred length of articles is between 4,000 and 9,000 words (approximately sixteen to thirty-six manuscript pages). Manuscripts must follow The Chicago Manual of Style (17th ed.) and should be printed in twelve-point font, double-spaced with generous margins. All references should be in footnotes. Please prepare any submission as a Word document ready for blind review. Where possible, please submit all submissions via our online delivery system: http://bit.ly/PCSubmission. The online submission form will prompt you to provide contact and paper information, including a one hundred word abstract of the submission. Before acceptance, submissions will be blind reviewed by appropriate referees. We reserve the right to edit for usage and style. All accepted manuscripts are subject to editorial modification. Authors of articles and philosophical notes will receive one gratis copy of the journal in which the article appears along with a reproducible electronic copy of the article or note.

These are brief discussions of a focused issue of philosophical interest to our readers and may be more personal, responsive, or reflective than regular research articles. Responses to previously published articles in Philosophia Christi are published in this section. Notes should normally not exceed 4,000 words, but the style and submission guidelines are the same as regular articles.

Submission of unsolicited book reviews is permissible, but prior communication with the book review editor is preferred. Proposals for review essays may also be sent to the book review editors.

We invite English-language submissions of original research in philosophy, apologetics, philosophical theology, philosophy of religion(s), ethics, worldviews, and philosophical and theological prolegomena. Although articles from specialists and established schol-

ers are preferred, articles of superior quality from graduate students are welcome. Contributors do not need to be members of the EPS. All manuscripts submitted should not have been published elsewhere and should not be under consideration for publication elsewhere without the consent of the editor.

The preferred length of articles is between 4,000 and 9,000 words (approximately sixteen to thirty-six manuscript pages). Manuscripts must follow The Chicago Manual of Style (17th ed.) and should be printed in twelve-point font, double-spaced with generous margins. All references should be in footnotes. Please prepare any submission as a Word document ready for blind review. Where possible, please submit all submissions via our online delivery system: http://bit.ly/PCSubmission. The online submission form will prompt you to provide contact and paper information, including a one hundred word abstract of the submission. Before acceptance, submissions will be blind reviewed by appropriate referees. We reserve the right to edit for usage and style. All accepted manuscripts are subject to editorial modification. Authors of articles and philosophical notes will receive one gratis copy of the journal in which the article appears along with a reproducible electronic copy of the article or note.

These are brief discussions of a focused issue of philosophical interest to our readers and may be more personal, responsive, or reflective than regular research articles. Responses to previously published articles in Philosophia Christi are published in this section. Notes should normally not exceed 4,000 words, but the style and submission guidelines are the same as regular articles.

Submission of unsolicited book reviews is permissible, but prior communication with the book review editor is preferred. Proposals for review essays may also be sent to the book review editors.

We invite English-language submissions of original research in philosophy, apologetics, philosophical theology, philosophy of religion(s), ethics, worldviews, and philosophical and theological prolegomena. Although articles from specialists and established schol-

ers are preferred, articles of superior quality from graduate students are welcome. Contributors do not need to be members of the EPS. All manuscripts submitted should not have been published elsewhere and should not be under consideration for publication elsewhere without the consent of the editor.
Philosophia Christi

Editor's Introduction

Craig J. Hazen 327

Forum on Erik J. Wielenberg’s Robust Ethics

Introduction to the American Academy of Religion Panel Forum on Erik Wielenberg’s Robust Ethics

Adam Lloyd Johnson 331

Erik Wielenberg’s Metaphysics of Morals

William Lane Craig 333

Wile E. Coyote and the Craggy Rocks

Tyler Dalton McNabb 339

Below: The Perils of Godless Ethics

No Creaturely Intrinsic Value

Mark C. Murphy 347

Fortifying the Petard: A Response to One of Erik Wielenberg’s Criticisms of the Divine Command Theory

Adam Lloyd Johnson 357

Reply to Craig, Murphy, McNabb, and Johnson

Erik J. Wielenberg 365

Articles

The Imago Dei and Blaise Pascal’s Abductive Anthropological Argument

Jonathan Mark Threlfall 379

Does the Purpose Theory of the Meaning of Life Entail an Irrational God?

Elliott R. Crozat 401

Theistic Evolution, Intelligent Design, and the Charge of Deism

Robert Larmer 415

The Open Theistic Multiverse

Timothy Blank 429

The Argument from Disagreement to Moral Skepticism: A “Worldview” Reply

Christopher W. Love 443

Origen on Demonic Ignorance: And Why It Might Still Matter for the Theology of World Religions

Travis Dumsday 463

Christian Materialism and Demonic Temptation

Matthew J. Hart 481

Intentionality contra Physicalism: On the Mind’s Independence from the Body

Dallas Willard and Brandon Rickabaugh 497

Extending the Debate on the Argument from Reason: A Further Response to David K. Johnson

Victor Reppert 517

Retiring the Argument from Reason: Another Reply to Reppert

David Kyle Johnson 541
Philosophical Notes

Evil Does Not Pose Any Special Problem for Berkeleyan Idealism: An Idealist Response to John DePoe

What’s Wrong with Theistic Evolution?

Book Reviews

Nicholas Rescher, Metaphysical Perspectives
J. P. Moreland 593

William Lane Craig 596

Ola Hössjer, Becoming a Christian: Combining Prior Belief, Evidence, and Will
Lydia McGrew 599

News and Announcements 604
You have in your hands right now the fortieth issue of Philosophia Christi—that adds up to twenty years of publishing for the journal under my supervision as editor. And if you have not heard yet, I will be ending my tenure as editor with this issue.

Here in my last editor’s introduction it gives me great pleasure to introduce the new editor. After a careful months-long search, the Executive Committee of the Evangelical Philosophical Society has invited Dr. Ross Inman to assume the chair. Ross holds a PhD from Trinity College, Dublin, and MA degrees in both philosophy and theology from the Talbot School of Theology at Biola University. He is currently Assistant Professor of Philosophy and Chair of the Philosophy Department in the School of Theology at Southwest Baptist Theological Seminary. His main research interests have been in metaphysics and philosophy of religion.

With the new guiding hand, don’t be surprised if you see a new look or possibly even a shift in the kinds of articles and topics that make the cut. (Although if you’re hoping for more nephrology, haiku, or naval history, you’re probably not going to get it.) I’m really looking forward to seeing what Ross does with the journal. And please continue to be as kind to him as you’ve been to me and my editorial team over the years—especially when we have had to pass on your submission. You’ve all been so gracious. Due to limited page space, we have had to exclude some really wonderful essays, and that always grieved us. (But, hey, maybe you can dust off the old submission and try your luck with the new guy!)

It was just today (December 19, 2018) that I got the complete proofs of this issue for my final read through. Final issue, final read through. I had a busy day planned, but when the PDF landed in my inbox it ruined my plans. I opened the file and started reading. I got caught up in it and pretty much forgot about everything else I was supposed to do today. I’ve had that experience over and over through the years and it has always been a great bit of personal evidence for me that we are on the right track. In other words, if I get excited about the material in the journal, there is a good chance that a lot of my colleagues will also be stimulated by the content. Seeing volume 20, number 2, was nearly as exciting for me as seeing volume 1, number 1.

Thank you technical editor, Gary Hartenburg. Thank you managing editor, Betty Talbert. Thank you consulting editor, Joe Gorra. Thank you countless referees and reviewers. Thank you book review editors, Chad Meister and Timothy Erdel. Thank you past EPS presidents, William Lane Craig, Paul Copan, and Angus Menuge.

Thank you all for a wonderful twenty years. I’m looking forward to seeing the evangelical philosophical future unfold over the next twenty years in the pages of Philosophia Christi.

Craig J. Hazen
Biola University